Cool. Here is my collection of quotes on insanity. Some are irregularly formatted, but still intelligible.

Show me a sane man and I will cure him for you.

--Carl Gustav Jung

What sane person could live in this world and not be crazy?

--Ursula K. LeGuin

In a mad world only the mad are sane.

--Akira Kurosawa (1910 - 1998)

Insanity: doing the same thing over and over again and expecting different results.

--Albert Einstein (1879 - 1955), (attributed)

Sometimes the mind, for reasons we don't necessarily understand, just decides to go to the store for a quart of milk.

--Diane Frolov and Andrew Schneider, Northern Exposure, Three Doctors, 1993

Insanity in individuals is something rare - but in groups, parties, nations and epochs, it is the rule.

--Friedrich Nietzsche (1844 - 1900)

There is always some madness in love. But there is also always some reason in madness.

--Friedrich Nietzsche (1844 - 1900), "On Reading and Writing"

Correct me if I'm wrong, but hasn't the fine line between sanity and madness gotten finer?

--George Price

Ordinarily he was insane, but he had lucid moments when he was merely stupid.

--Heinrich Heine (1797 - 1856)

Truly great madness cannot be achieved without significant intelligence.

--Henrik Tikkanen

When dealing with the insane, the best method is to pretend to be sane.

--Hermann Hesse (1877 - 1962)

I hate to advocate drugs, alcohol, violence, or insanity to anyone, but they've always worked for me.

--Hunter S. Thompson (1939 - 2005)

Part of being sane, is being a little bit crazy.

--Janet Long

Sanity calms, but madness is more interesting.

--John Russell

A neurosis is a secret that you don't know you are keeping.

--Kenneth Tynan

It is no measure of health to be well adjusted to a profoundly sick society.

--Krishnamurti

I don't really trust a sane person.

--Lyle Alzado (1949 - 1992)

There's a fine line between genius and insanity. I have erased this line.

--Oscar Levant (1906 - 1972)

The statistics on sanity are that one out of every four Americans is suffering from some form of mental illness. Think of your three best friends. If they're okay, then it's you.

--Rita Mae Brown

You're only given a little spark of madness. You mustn't lose it.

--Robin Williams (1951 -)

There is only one difference between a madman and me. I am not mad.

--Salvador Dali (1904 - 1989)

There is no great genius without some touch of madness.

--Seneca (5 BC - 65 AD), Epistles

Joel: Ed, are you hallucinating?

Ed: Oh, yeah, but not right now.

--Sy Rosen and Christian Williams, Northern Exposure, On Your Own, 1992

Howard Hughes was able to afford the luxury of madness, like a man who not only thinks he is Napoleon but hires an army to prove it.

--Ted Morgan

Dreaming permits each and every one of us to be quietly and safely insane every night of our lives.

--William Dement, in Newsweek, 1959

Oh, that way madness lies; let me shun that.

--William Shakespeare (1564 - 1616), "King Lear", Act 3 scene 4

Though this be madness, yet there is method in 't.

-- William Shakespeare (1564 - 1616), "Hamlet", Act 2 scene 2

“Honesty is the best policy, but insanity is a better defense”

“Reality is the #1 cause of insanity among those who are in contact with it”

“For me, insanity is super sanity. The normal is psychotic. Normal means lack of imagination, lack of creativity.”

--Jean Dubuffet

“Insanity - a perfectly rational adjustment to an insane world.”

--R. D. Laing

“Madness need not be all breakdown. It may also be break-through. It is potential liberation and renewal as well as enslavement and existential death.”

--R. D. Laing

“Normality highly values its normal man. It educates children to lose themselves and to become absurd, and thus to be normal. Normal men have killed perhaps 100, 000 of their fellow normal men in the last fifty years.”

--R. D. Laing

“From the moment of birth, when the stone-age baby confronts the twentieth-century mother, the baby is subjected to these forces of violence, called love, as its mother and father have been, and their parents and their parents before them. These forces are mainly concerned with destroying most of its potentialities. This enterprise is on the whole successful.”

R. D. Laing

“The range of what we think and do is limited by what we fail to notice.
And because we fail to notice that we fail to notice, there is little we can do to change; until we notice how failing to notice shapes our thoughts and deeds.”

R. D. Laing

“We are all murderers and prostitutes --no matter to what culture, society, class, nation one belongs, no matter how normal, moral, or mature, one takes oneself to be.”

R. D. Laing

“We are all in a post-hypnotic trance induced in early infancy”

R. D. Laing

“Alienation as our present destiny is achieved only by outrageous violence perpetrated by human beings on human beings.”

R. D. Laing

“In the society of men the truth resides now less in what things are than in what they are not. Our social realities are so ugly if seen in the light of exiled truth, and beauty is no longer possible if it is not a lie.”

R. D. Laing

“Rule A: Don't. Rule A1: Rule A doesn't exist. Rule A2: Do not discuss the existence or non-existence of Rules A, A1 or A2.”

“A child born today in the United Kingdom stands a ten times greater chance of being admitted to a mental hospital than to a university ...
This can be taken as an indication that we are driving our children mad more effectively than we are genuinely educating them.

Perhaps it is our way of educating them that is driving them mad.”

R. D. Laing

“Children do not give up their innate imagination, curiosity, dreaminess easily. You have to love them to get them to do that.”

R. D. Laing

“The brotherhood of man is evoked by particular men according to their circumstances. But it seldom extends to all men. In the name of our freedom and our brotherhood we are prepared to blow up the other half of mankind and to be blown up in our turn.”

R. D. Laing

“We are bemused and crazed creatures, strangers to our true selves, to one another, and to the spiritual and material world -- mad, even, from an ideal standpoint we can glimpse but not adopt.”

R. D. Laing

“We are effectively destroying ourselves by violence masquerading as love.”

R. D. Laing

“Insanity is the only sane reaction to an insane society.”

Philemon

Thomas Szas

“Sanity in a world of insanity is insane”

“Reality is for those who lack imagination”

“Insanity is my only means of relaxation”

“If you want to improve, be content to be thought foolish and stupid.”
cnsorensen

Epictetus

I Like this quote. I dislike this quote. “I've learned that people will forget what you said, people will forget what you did, but people will never forget how you made them feel.”

Maya Angelou

“Our society is run by insane people for insane objectives. I think we're being run by maniacs for maniacal ends and I think I'm liable to be put away as insane for expressing that. That's what's insane about it.”

John Lennon

“I may be crazy but it keeps me from going insane.”

Waylon Jennings

“Insane people are always sure that they are fine. It is only the sane people who are willing to admit that they are crazy.”

Nora Ephron

“In the End, we will remember not the words of our enemies, but the silence of our friends.”

Martin Luther King, Jr.

“I'm a study of a man in chaos in search of frenzy.”

Oscar Levant

Every man is wise when attacked by a mad dog; fewer when pursued by a mad woman; only the wisest survive when attacked by a mad notion.

--Robertson Davies

MUCH madness is divinest sense
To a discerning eye;
Much sense the starkest madness.
'T is the majority
In this, as all, prevails.
Assent, and you are sane;
Demur,—you 're straightway dangerous,
And handled with a chain.

--Emily Dickinson

Men, it has been well said, think in herds; it will be seen that they go mad in herds, while they only recover their senses slowly, and one by one.

--Charles Mackay

When we remember we are all mad, the mysteries disappear and life stands explained.

--Mark Twain

The men who really believe in themselves are all in lunatic asylums.
- GK Chesterton

Most men are within a finger's breadth of being mad.
--Diogenes the Cynic

A casual stroll through the lunatic asylum shows that faith does not prove anything.

--Freidreich Nietzsche

"Then again I might just be crazy."

--St. Hugh, Quoted in "A Pocket Full of Chaos".

Sanity is a madness put to good use.

--George Santayana (1863 - 1952)

Mad, adj. Affected with a high degree of intellectual independence.

.following is a REALLY important distinction

."arlington road" is a great movie

.i really liked "arlington road"

.if you like a movie and i like it too, then i like you

.if you think a movie is great and i think it is great too, it doesn't necessarily follow that i think you are great

.it's a different kind of relationship

.a "great movie" is a linguistic construct... an idea, an intellectual abstraction

.liking a movie is "emotional"

[2/14/11 3:52:05 AM] jet - Derek Mondelli (jettatore): Where you see the word teamspeak, I intend to make that a hyperlink which leads to the "connecting to teamspeak" instructional page

[2/14/11 3:52:22 AM] jet - Derek Mondelli (jettatore): Science and Sanity reading starts Feb. 27 @ 20:00 GMT

We will be reading Science and Sanity by Alfred Korzybski on the Zeitgeist Movement Teamspeak server every Sunday at 20:00 GMT. We will be in the Science and Sanity room, which you will find at the bottom of the rooms list as a sub-channel of the Earthling room.

The format is simple. After a brief introduction we will begin our reading for 30 to 45 minutes. Following that, there will be time for questions seeking clarification on what has been read. It is important for this segment that we refrain from talking about our opinions of the material. This segment is for understanding definitions, terminologies and foreign concepts that pertain to what was read thus far. Following this, the room will be open for any sort of relevant discussion.

Both the reading and the Q&A will be recorded and available afterwards. By the end of this experiment we should have a full, edited recording of Science and Sanity and a robust Q&A companion audio.

We are seeking people who may be good at and enjoy reading aloud. If your are interested please contact me, or join us this coming Sunday - Feb.20 at 20:00 GMT for an informal practice run.

All are welcome, join us and bring friends.

[2/14/11 4:16:06 AM] jet - Derek Mondelli (jettatore): (I remember now that I think and others agreed, we might link to the 5 stupidities lecture if you think it is appropriate) alfred korzybski published "science and sanity" in 1933. every person i've met who has read it agrees that it is one of the ten most important books ever written

we'll meet here every sunday @ 20:00 gmt

the book changed my life

three writers have changed my life:

i like to say that alan watts got my spiritual virginity; alfred korzybski knocked me up; and ray kurzweil delivered the baby i've read it twice: first time about 35 years ago and then again about 10 years after that i've also studied most of the general semantics literature, chase, hayakawa, and dozens of others
i'll try to answer any question

the meetings will consist of three phases

1. the reading
2. questions about clarifying the text submitted in chat
3. open voice discussion

i may do some editorializing if i think it's necessary

if you want to do some of the reading reading, let jet know it's been on my mind lately that i owe you two apologies first, i apologize for my physical abuse of you as an infant.

nothing i can say will atone for that.
i don't know what impact it has had on your life.
if you want to talk about it any time, i am available.

secondly, i apologize for jumping the gun and contacting joseph when i didn't hear from you.
i realize that it stirred up a hornet's nest in your life.

when cassandra called me, it awakened some deep feelings that i couldn't resist, or at least didn't resist.

i've said before that i would leave future communications to you and have violated that statement, yet again.
i think i have now said everything i NEED to say to you.

i hope we can form a good relationship in the future, but i can live with i wish you a long and fulfilling life.

I was a free man in prison and a reformed man when I came out.

When you say your ideas are based on reason, you may as well say you are basing them on language rules. Language is the foundation of reason. If you are believe you can be reasonable without adhering to language rules, you can only demonstrate that by making new language rules.

The brain is a pattern recognition machine. Perhaps it would be more accurate to say you are basing your ideas on your personal experience recognizing patterns, including all of those language experiences and their peculiar patterns.

Accusations of deception are often made by people of limited perception. Fraud is easier to believe than clod.

Why do I stir the pot? To see what is at the bottom.
Language is a mind altering substance, use it in moderation.

You don't know what you don't know, so what? But why don't you know what you want to know?

Your historical performance is not nearly as interesting as what we can create at this moment.

Integrity is the latest product to be oversold to growth seekers. Yet at some level even a disingenuous promise has integrity.

Transforming lead into gold is beyond the capability of personal growth consultants. They earn money by patiently transforming puppies into a dogs.

If I understand you then I must agree with you. But if I agree with you I may not understand you, I may only be aligning with you.

What little men can know about women does not compare to what women are asked to forget about men every day.

The expression of anger can help one locate an unknown fear and calculate its energy coefficient.

The abusive parent deconstructs and reconstructs children, controlling but never creating possibility. Every parenting manual should require that we grow up along side our children.

Socrates said: he doesn't know, but you do. A double lie from the midwife of arrogance.

Truth is an onion. Peel away every layer until you have nothing or put it to good use as a part of something bigger. Try peeling away only what you must to make it useful and thus avoid many unnecessary tears. How else could you worship an onion?

We can't know your truth until we know your intention. And then we know your emotion.

Drag a magnet in sand and you will get iron, nickel or cobalt. But leaders who rely on magnetism find something even more organic in their sand.

Is your tragedy that you agree without understanding? You make a poor follower.

Learners can learn without teachers, but teachers can not teach without learners. It is right to suspect too much arrogance in a teacher and too much modesty in a student.

There can be no teaching where there is no learning. Theoretical exceptions can be made in the case of universities.

Did you think you were an island? Good, now dig a little deeper.

How can every mind be connected? First by the root and then in the fruit.

First communicate, and then collaborate. This is the way of the learner.

If you can't think of anything good to say, say anything at all and we will improve it together.

There is only learning and telling. Everything else is in the past.

As a word game, self improvement is not a contradiction. But one can always wake from a word game.

A philosopher does absolutely nothing. As soon as they do anything, they become something other than a philosopher.

The tautology is a pompous bastard born of an unholy union between knowledge and linguistics. Blind with no teeth, it is a friend to every unreasoned thought. And I have noticed it lately in the most popular of places.

Technology itself seems to be the soul of the machine. In just a hundred years this lack of vision will be seen as evidence of the immaturity in post industrial humankind.

Guided by the ethics of profitability, technologies that make other technologies obsolete have the highest value. Guided by the ethics of sustainability, technologies that support life have the highest value. Guided by the ethics of building human value, technologies that support sharing experience have the highest value.

As technology increases in complexity, the complexity of society must increase proportionately.

Choosing our technological ethics does not alter the profit margins of a free market, it merely points the soul of the machine toward a higher purpose.

Let's raise the bar and have a drink. I propose a toast to our next awakening.

The idea of a misperception is difficult to understand if perceiving is only a stimulus processed with a perspective. Do we really want to say that someone has a misperspective? Should we simply call it a misunderstanding?

It doesn't matter what you heard, the point is that listening changes everything.

There is no paradox of omniscience. While I can never remember what I never knew, we can use logic to demonstrate that I could come to know something new. For the most part, discussing what I knew and when should be the work of police detectives and not philosophers. What I expect of a philosopher is to finally come to some understanding of the meaning of the word know.

The future and the past exist only as probabilities in our mind. Yet we continuously experience the present without asking if time is a condition of existence.

A fundamental step that must be taken to create any meaningful philosophy is to treat knowledge as a verb rather than a noun. The idea of snapshots of knowledge that are not refreshed at every moment has no place in modernity.

Many adults leave behind the spontaneity of their childhood while spending the rest of their life believing spontaneity was immaturity and nothing more. Ironically for most adults, maturity is not much more than a thin veil of conformity. Is freedom simply a stage in a natural process of conformity?

Heisenberg's observations can be applied to language. You can know the precise definition of a word by ignoring its single case use. You can know a word's use by ignoring its precise definition. Stringing concepts together using words is always a recreation of the energetic patterns of thought that existed only at the time of intended use. Those patterns are changed to an unknown extent during observation of them. If you attempt to measure the measurement, you will lose all hope of establishing either intention or precise meaning of a pattern of thought.

If mind exists at all, it does so in way is very different than any known physical laws. Yet science itself is not possible without mind.

If mind is a function of brain, at least it should be noted that unlike other functions, mind cannot be described using terms of physics. Brain on the other hand can be described in a system of well known physical laws.

In the same way mind is popularly understood to rise from the existence of brain, mind can also be understood to rise from the existence of universe.

Space is intentionally left blank.

- MISSION STATEMENT [Updated April 24th '11] -

Founded in 2008, The Zeitgeist Movement is a Sustainability Advocacy Organization which conducts community based activism and awareness actions through a network of Global/Regional Chapters, Project Teams, Annual Events, Media and Charity Work.

The Movement's principle focus includes the recognition that the majority of the social problems which plague the human species at this time are not the sole result of some institutional corruption, scarcity, a political policy, a flaw of "human nature" or other commonly held assumptions of causality in the activist community. Rather, The Movement recognizes that issues such as poverty, corruption, collapse, homelessness, war, starvation and the like appear to be "Symptoms" born out of an outdated social structure. While intermediate Reform steps and temporal Community Support are of interest to The Movement, the defining goal here is the installation of a new socioeconomic model based upon technically responsible Resource Management, Allocation and Distribution through what would be considered The Scientific Method of reasoning problems and finding optimized solutions.

This "Resource-Based Economic Model" is about taking a direct technical approach to social management as opposed to a Monetary or even Political one.

It is about updating the workings of society to the most advanced and proven methods Science has to offer, leaving behind the damaging consequences and limiting inhibitions which are generated by our current system of monetary exchange, profits, corporations and other structural and motivational components.

The Movement is loyal to a train of thought, not figures or institutions. In other words, the view held is that through the use of socially targeted research and tested understandings in Science and Technology, we are now able to logically arrive at societal applications which could be profoundly more effective in meeting the needs of the human population.

In fact, so much so, that there is little reason to assume war, poverty, 95% of most crime and many other money-based scarcity effects common in our current model cannot be resolved over time.

The range of The Movement's Activism & Awareness Campaigns extend from short to long term.

The long term view, which is the transition into a Resource-Based Economic Model, is a constant pursuit and expression, as stated before.

However, in the path to get there, The Movement also recognizes the need for transitional Reform techniques, along with direct Community Support.

For instance, while "Monetary Reform" itself is not an end solution proposed by The Movement, the merit of such legislative approaches are still considered valid in the context of transition and temporal integrity.

Likewise, while food and clothes drives and other supportive projects to help those in need today is also not considered a long term solution, it is still also considered valid in the context of helping others in a time of need, while also drawing awareness to the principle goal. The Zeitgeist Movement also has no allegiance to a country or traditional political platforms. It views the world as a single system and the human species as a single family and recognizes that all countries must disarm and learn to share resources and ideas if we expect to survive in the long run. Hence, the solutions arrived at and promoted are in the interest to help everyone on the planet Earth, not a select group.

[4/29/11 4:18:20 PM] Nicolas Universe: thats it :) ty for doing this. I think its importance in understanding what the movement think our "mission" is :)

Coordination Network Development

The spontaneous growth of TZM and the attraction of its proposals caught everybody by surprise, especially in respect of forward planning, organization, structure and administration of the movement.

The exact nature of the problems have only been preliminarily analyzed and defined, but the symptoms are exceedingly clear:

1. Inter-Chapter coordination and communication systems have created friction between some chapters and International Coordination as the role of global coordinator's are not clear.
2. The "Coordinator" system is not well understood, and there are mixtures of ideas which have strong leadership, a traditional style, to no action at all. The training of coordinator's is either superficial or nonexistent.
3. Present structure creates a perception of a de-facto, quasi-authoritarian leadership.
4. While the movement spearheads the "Scientific Method" as a criteria to validate, internal/external confrontations, projects and administrative functions, little if any application is made of this tool, nor is its operation made obvious.

5. There is no uniform approach to networking; in fact, there appears to be no organized networking formation.
6. Standard Organizational functions are not clear, nor clearly spelled out anywhere, save superficially:
 - a) Complaints procedures lack uniformity between the global site and TS 3.
 - b) Calendar's are not being utilized fully.
 - c) A lack of a feedback mechanism with a periodic evaluation team for chapter & coordination at each tier.
 - d) A well organized web site where people find where to go, and the direction on how to proceed.
 - e) People abandon any hope to be able to help, when they get no answer, and no feed back, and no way to penetrate what is perceived as a somewhat invisible management structure.
 - f) There's no clear communication feedback from management to members.
 - g) Finally, there is no clear distinction on who or whom management is.

All these symptoms are well recorded in our Wiki site, which has been set up to study the organizational systems: http://wiki.zmlingteam.org/w/Coordination_Network_Developmenthttp://wiki.zmlingteam.org/w/Coordination_Network_Development.

Hence, our Working Purpose: Analysis of the Movement's proficiencies and inefficiencies, incorporating a mechanism of feedback and self assessment, to put forward new methods and models for Movement design. This arose as the first expression of the purpose from the input of CND membership, which numbers around 70 at present, many of whom are team members of other formally recognized teams. One common observation is that their own task in their team is restricted by the lack of intra-organizational communication interfaces, methods or procedures, not to mention the need for international coordination.

Our activities so far, based on our immediate perception of urgency and discovered by personal observation, or brought to our attention by people at large, and Forum comments, encompass some of the following areas:

- Chapters
- Protocols
- Procedures

(These include such things as chapter liaisons, and communicators, and the necessary software, to keep the international network connected and informed.)

- Welcome Wagon. (A group of some 10 members, dedicated to help people find their niche in the movement).
- Coordinator training and guidance. (Documentation and video dedicated to making an effective coordinator that gets things done, and helps the team do what they need to do.)
- Orientation Preparedness. (Organization of education classes on ts 3)
- International web site redesign call, (To contain a “wish” list and a Coordinator Support Network (CSN) as a front line of people's access to TZM. People need to be able to find anything and everything in the site. This is nearly impossible at present).

As the CND team collaborates with other development teams on collaborative tools that help the movement apply the tenets of the Scientific Method to movement projects, structure, and goals, it will apply those same tools to itself, to constantly analyze it's own effectiveness. Currently, we take and gather feedback from the TZM community, about how to structure and push forward CND's efforts. By definition this implies that CND will also be subject to peer review.

It is our intention to create a method of recording, warehousing, and prioritizing projects and resources, to assist in project evaluation. (Comparable to a “Time Bank, or Time and Resource bank.) Along with a collection of technical information for system approach analyses, System Dynamics, and many other known evaluation systems for personnel training.

There are many other elements which are called for by general demand, which are noted in our Wiki documentation, and other locations, which will be added as we move forward. Our own operational procedure calls for continuing validation of each project and result studies to ensure each activity has worthwhile finite results that support its continuation. The implications are obvious that the CND team will become organizationally involved in every aspect of the Movement, searching, and funneling unused resources, and personnel to the appropriate team or activity, and guide them towards productive participation.

Everything for which there is no known place of coordinator, should come to CND. CND in turn, works out the appropriate location for the particular or activity, and sets up the channel for that type of event, establishing what will become the future routine handling. If a structure exists, it is routed appropriately, and our task then is to adjust the communication lines to obviate future miss-direction. A byproduct of our activities will provide organizational information to other teams, and global coordinators for their use in TZM coordinating activities, especially in our periodic reports to management concerning the State of the Movement.

CND is a team that provides assistance, coordination, personnel, resources, and organizational information to other teams, in TZM. Intelligently applied, our activities and goals will help shape a sound foundation for an RBE.

CND hasn't waited to be informed about its duties and responsibilities. The next organizational requirement is the official recognition of the CND team, and adequate access to necessary software development to perform its functions more effectively.

Understanding how twitter saved a nation and why it is important to us:

1. A knows that B knows

You may watch the whole thing, but please focus on 6:52-9:43

2. Watch for effect

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=3-son3EJTrU&feature=relmfu>

3. How our views work

In the sense of mutual knowledge it is important to understand the collected and displayed opinions about the world are enough alone to change it when the message is clear, widespread and well delivered.

In that sense, any single message is best displayed the most simply

This is why Twitter is important to our movement. While it may not reflect the entire message, it reflects in a very real-time-now sense of what is demanded by the entire group at a completely individual level.

To know how Peter Joseph feels is one thing. And that is what his movie best displays.

For you to show a friend this content, is for the friend to feel not only the way Peter Joseph feels, but feel the way you feel as well.

However to understand that a large group, right now, feels the same way(including Peter and my friend) is a much more compelling argument for others to join us immediately. Along with what maybe just 'some of our friends' think, we need to better illustrate how ridiculously large our movement is.

4. My proposal

Taking into account what I believe to be 'a window into our behavior' its actually very simple.

We will play Simon Says twitter. A leading force will Tweet a very simple message to our world, and we will all relay that exact same message by retweeting it ourselves, at the exact same time.

The simple act of this will be a very large scale demonstration of how many individuals the movement contains by our entire force acting upon the same domain.

Additionally it should also be noted that it attacks on all three levels of argument, whereas a movie, does not.

While Peter Joseph can strike both the logical and emotional senses of argument in his proposal, only a social network like twitter can illustrate the ethos of the message effectively.

This cannot be ignored if we truly plan to spread our message to domains outside of 'media'.

[5/1/11 4:36:56 PM] Brian Miller: All ideas presented here had the ideals of a RBE in mind, and will use many of them, like eventually free food, healthcare, housing, cars, education, and free resource for production/invention.

This system will be tweaked as it progresses to reach those goals. It also allows competition with the current system, to phase it out. Read more on the site about.

Here's a brief explanation, A dual credit count system is a credit system that uses electronically tracked cards, just like a library card, which is used to setup an account for someone to have an online account connected with that card. This use allows a non-profit economy to exist. When you are able to prevent companies from making a profit from what people buy from them, by not sending credits from a person's card onward to the businesses, then you still are allowing a system of supply and demand to exist similar to the price system of today. The credits will only be negated for the price of a good. Businesses will use a resource-based economy to function. This system also denies people the ability to trade credits, making people have to eventually learn to share goods instead of trying to make a profit off their fellow man. This system exhibits base ideals of a RBE, and allows the eventual transition to one because you are getting rid of the greed and profit systems that exist in the current capitalist system. With this transition economy you let time for automation to reach its true potentials and unlock the grips that corporations have on the world.

I already have a little bit mapped out about how the movement can help transition to a DCCS worldwide. Please view the site here www.thefutureproject.net and look under future economy to see the paper that goes into more details about this system. It is not completely worked out yet, I have only had a month to refine most of the ideas, and will need help in developing a community, along with the some of base networking for the system.

Please read the paper before making judgments where you think you see a hole in the system.

This system is needed in order to help the consciousness of the majority of people in the world that do not understand a RBE, and to allow a model town/community to exist, showing people a working model of people cooperating with the system. Education and a model are good things to work towards within the movement. No reason we cannot do both at the same time, we have enough people. Also if you read the paper, I have the land to start this, and the food will come soon after(its on a farm with all the equipment needed), and then we take small baby steps in building it, not mapping out a entire city and expecting the millions in funding to appear from some grant. I have a job and will pull extra income from farming to be used directly in construction.

Why is the monkey mind bad?

If the monkey mind is distracting you why bother to turn it off?
Why not channel or regulate it's power instead?
I'm proposing it could be a useful resource.

For example, studies have shown that listening to classical music during test taking or competitive game playing will increase scores/results by as much as 10%.

If you utilized your monkey mind, you could listen to classical music whenever you wanted.

This is just one example.

Another is solfeggio frequencies.

You could use this to do koan meditation too.

I've never heard of any meditation technique which works in this direction and never seen any book dealing with it.

إذا كانت 600 منظمة مصرية قد تقدمت بطلبات للحصول على منح مالية أمريكية لدعم المجتمع المدني، فمن حقنا أن نسأل:

،ما هي تلك المنظمات

،وما هي المجالات التي تنشط فيها

،وما هي الأهداف السياسية أو التنموية التي تسعى إلى تحقيقها

وإذا كانت الولايات المتحدة قد ضخت بالفعل 40 مليون دولار في مصر لدعم الديمقراطية منذ 25 يناير، بمعدل 8 ملايين دولار شهريا، فما هي الجهات التي تلقت المبالغ

وما هي الأنشطة «الديمقراطية» التي وظفت لأجلها؟

هذه التساؤلات من وحي الحديث الذي وجهته إلى لجنة العلاقات الخارجية بمجلس الشيوخ الأمريكي، سفيرة واشنطن الجديدة إلى مصر آن باترسون، التي رشحت لخلافة السفيرة الحالية مارجريت سكوبي

Heron Stone got his degree in Philosophy, cal State Dominguez Hills, works at design and layout at a newspaper, is a musician and artist, age 65, divorced, one son. He is interested in the subject of language and its impact on every aspect of human behavior. He says that we are subject to a linguistically-induced trance that we mistake for reality. He says that what he calls the language machine has hypnotized us into believing that the voice in our head is who we really are, and that our conception of the self is a linguistically-induced illusion. He began thinking about these ideas on reading Alfred Korzybski, "Science And Sanity" and "Time-Binding". He is a wide-ranging and exhaustive reader, bordering on obsessive compulsive, a student of consciousness, philosophy and language.

"Faith is a state of openness or trust. To have faith is to trust yourself to the water. When you swim you don't grab hold of the water, because if you do you will sink and drown. Instead you relax, and float. And the attitude of faith is the very opposite of clinging to belief, of holding on. In other words, a person who is fanatic in matters of religion, and clings to certain ideas about the nature of God and the universe, becomes a person who has no faith at all. Instead they are holding tight. But the attitude of faith is to let go, and become open to truth, whatever it might turn out to be."

ehorizon - andy

I stood there soaked in sweat, dripping with desire for a breeze.
The air was heavy with humidity, so much so that mosquitoes couldn't even lift their wings to fly.

The Sky held its breath as though the Universe was whispering it a secret, then suddenly the Sky inhaled, like it was shocked with lightening, and at once every leaf raised from the branches like gills and gasped as though the wind was water.

After several minutes of deep breaths the Sky gave one last exhalation, swaying every tree tip in the forest like a crowd of waving hands, saying goodbye for now.

On the last gust of wind I followed the direction of the leaves which drove my head to look up and the impact of the Universe instantly paralyzed my neck.

Unable to look down, my feet felt as far away as the stars I stared at but I still felt a sensation that swelled in my toes, the shiver that slides across them when flirting with the edge of a cliff, or when swimming in an ocean so deep where only very heavy things that drown meet bottom.

The Zeitgeist Movement's principle focus includes the recognition that the majority of the social problems with plague the human species at this time are not the sole result of scarcity, a political policy, a flaw of "human nature" or other commonly held assumptions of causality in the activist community.

Rather, this movement recognizes that issues such as poverty, corruption, collapse, homelessness, war, starvation, and the like appear to be "symptoms" born out of an outdated social structure. While intermediate reform steps and temporal community support are of interest to this movement, the defining goal here is the installation of a new socioeconomic model based based upon technically responsible resource management, allocation and distribution through what would be considered the The Scientific Method of reasoning problems and finding optimized solutions.

This "Resource-Based Economic Model" is about taking a direct technical approach to social management as opposed to a monetary or even political one.

It is about updating the workings of society to the most advanced and proven methods science has to offer, leaving behind the damaging consequences and limiting inhibitions which are generated by our current system of monetary exchange, profits, corporations and other structural and motivational components.

To find the rare particle, the CDF team sifted through data they collected from 2001 to 2008.

The circular collider creates new particles by smashing together protons and antiprotons traveling at close to the speed of light — and colliding at energies of almost 2 trillion electron volts.

That's about twice the energy of a flying mosquito concentrated into a spot the size of a subatomic particle.

Dismounting Dead Horses:
A Metaphor for Change

The tribal wisdom of the Dakota Indians, passed on from one generation to the next, says that when you discover you are riding a dead horse, the best strategy is to dismount.

Of course, we may first try other strategies.

We might whip harder, or offer sugar, or change riders, or appoint a committee to study the horse.

But at the end of the day, we will still be left on a dead horse.

Why would anyone (or any organization) hold on to a dead horse?
For many reasons, possibly.

We have believed in the horse, hoped for the horse, loved the horse.
We doubted or denied the horse could ever die.

Perhaps we even relish the hero's role of resurrecting a dead horse, or the martyr's ideal of self-sacrifice alongside the horse. Dismounting seems to mean giving up, or doubting that there will ever be another live horse again.

Actually, discerning our dead horses takes uncommon wisdom, and rarely happens without an intentional process. Perhaps such discernment begins with noticing, not denying, a lack of forward movement.

(Others of us must absolutely crash!)

The discernment continues as we discover that despite trying harder, or smarter, or more aggressively, we remain at the same place. And we finally acknowledge that the same place is not our desired destination.

Spiritually, the temptation to keep riding a dead horse comes from a misplaced faith.

We think our horse is sacred, and we are in ultimate control.

Whether the horse is a relationship, a job, a dream, or an ideal, we think we must stay on and ride it out, with our own blinders blocking any other vision.

Paradoxically, sometimes only by dismounting, by letting go of our dead horse, can we begin a new trek.

It can be the hardest thing we ever do.

As I reflect on my own life, I find myself reminded of a dead horse or two.

I think I'll try sugar first.

nietsche:

There are still harmless self-observers who believe that there are "immediate certainties"; for instance, "I think," or as the superstition of Schopenhauer puts it, "I will"; as though cognition here got hold of its object purely and simply as "the thing in itself," without any falsification taking place either on the part of the subject or the object.

I would repeat it, however, a hundred times, that "immediate certainty," as well as "absolute knowledge" and the "thing in itself," involve a CONTRADICTION IN ADJECTO; we really ought to free ourselves from the misleading significance of words!

The people on their part may think that cognition is knowing all about things, but the philosopher must say to himself:

"When I analyze the process that is expressed in the sentence, 'I think,' I find a whole series of daring assertions, the argumentative proof of which would be difficult, perhaps impossible:

for instance, that it is I who think, that there must necessarily be something that thinks, that thinking is an activity and operation on the part of a being who is thought of as a cause, that there is an 'ego,' and finally, that it is already determined what is to be designated by thinking—that I KNOW what thinking is.

For if I had not already decided within myself what it is, by what standard could I determine whether that which is just happening is not perhaps 'willing' or 'feeling'?

In short, the assertion 'I think,' assumes that I COMPARE my state at the present moment with other states of myself which I know, in order to determine what it is;

on account of this retrospective connection with further 'knowledge,' it has, at any rate, no immediate certainty for me."

In place of the "immediate certainty" in which the people may believe in the special case, the philosopher thus finds a series of metaphysical questions presented to him, veritable conscience questions of the intellect, to wit:

"Whence did I get the notion of 'thinking'?

Why do I believe in cause and effect?

What gives me the right to speak of an 'ego,' and even of an 'ego' as cause, and finally of an 'ego' as cause of thought?"

He who ventures to answer these metaphysical questions at once by an appeal to a sort of INTUITIVE perception, like the person who says, "I think, and know that this, at least, is true, actual, and certain"—will encounter a smile and two notes of interrogation in a philosopher nowadays.

"Sir," the philosopher will perhaps give him to understand, "it is improbable that you are not mistaken, but why should it be the truth?"

Monkey Operating System

Let me just spin it cause its not its a relatively simple idea, its dividing history into three eras.

And this is curiously in alignment with the Christian bible's account of Adam and Eve, which is something i rejected flatly you know i never accepted that as any reasonable understanding of the universe but now I've come back to it in a very different light though. And it basically, the origins of language are completely unknown, you know there is a lot of speculation among linguists and various scientists of different types. But the truth is, nobody really knows, uhm , just how far back language goes or how it evolved or anything. You know, its all just speculation. Well, I have my own speculation about it.

And this relates to what i called the monkey operating system before, that all animals have, i mean, basically animals, the bodies anyway, are machines. They're machines in exactly the same sense that my computer is a machine. They're made out of meat, but nonetheless they are made of physical matter that obeys the laws of physics, and therefore they are machines and they operate according to the way their operating system controls the animal or the monkey in the case I'm talking about, or the language monkeys, the species we belong to. This operating system, you know, is the way monkeys walk, and find food and organize their activities. You know, basically all the stuff that is the software that is built into the monkey operating system that runs the monkey that allows it to survive and thrive and reproduce and do all the things that monkeys do, I call the monkey operating system. But there is a special species of monkeys that had a special subroutine in their monkey OS called language, in my case English, and in other people's cases other languages. But that's a very special sort of subroutine in the monkey OS. And that probably evolved over many, many, probably 100.000's of years.

Cause clearly even dogs have some rudimentary ability to categorize their experience, and that means language. Their language is vastly different than human's but the fact that a dog can recognize its master's car pull in the driveway, means it has a concept in its head that that sound is related to certain things and has to be labelled somehow. Very differently and we don't understand it at all, but I would say that that is a linguistic ability. And so that arose over many, probably, hundreds of thousands of years. And up until about the somewhere between 2000 and 4000 BC, I think it's quite clear, in fact it is clear, that people heard voices in their heads. But prior to say 2000 or 4000 BC that voice was attributed to God, or the king, or the elder, or the tree in the backyard, or something. But the idea that that voice was me, that I controlled it and all that, that simply didn't exist until historical times, and you can trace it, there's a book called the Origin of Consciousness, by a guy named Julian Jaynes, wrote about it in the late 70s about this. Fascinating book, and he documents it fairly well. You can look at all the old ancient literature, say 2500 to 3000 BC, and people continually are referring to being told what to do by the gods.

And that there's a voice that would actually tell them what to do. And we read that now, and people think, well, what's the matter now, are they crazy? What the hell are they talking about, they're lying, they're making this stuff up. No, they weren't making it up. They heard a voice just like you and I do, except that they had interpreted that, or the way, not they did, but the way it was set up to be explained was that that was the voice of God telling them what to do. And then around you know 2- and 4 thousand years ago, something new happened, a new idea popped into that language machine, and that, that was the idea that, wait a minute, that voice is me! I control that voice, i can do what I want with it.

The first one who did that was Adam. you know, I mean metaphorically, so there were things that looked just like you and me around, or at least 100.000 years and probably a lot longer, but they weren't human in any sense of the word by what we mean by human, because that voice for them, there was no "I", they were basically language monkeys, until this new idea that, wait a minute, that voice is me, and its taken several thousand years for that idea, that created, basically, civilization and humanity, that was when history started.

Thats why history goes no further back than about 4000 years, the oldest written documents are like 4200 BC. Anyway, that would explain the sort of mystery of our past, because up until the concept of "I" emerged, basically all you had was language monkeys.

So now, for the last 5000 years, something like that, we have been laboring under what I call the hallucination that that voice is me, in the last 50 years, with the advent of computers and computer languages, and programming, there's been a whole new way of thinking about language. And what we're now, it seems clear to me what we have discovered, it's not even controversial as far as I'm concerned, the voice is not me. they were wrong, I mean it was maybe a step forward from the voice is god to the voice is me, and it lead to all of human history, but now we know the voice is my language machine, It's programmed, it's a machine. It does what it's been programmed to do and unfortunately a lot of it is really stupid.

So now we are witnessing this next major emergence on the planet of a new species, just as Adam was inherently a new species from the pre-Adam language monkeys, although they were genetically interbreedable, biologically they were the same species. The fact that Adam thought: "that voice is me"....

Adam, imagine being Adam, imagine being the first guy who could wake up to that and realize "hey, wait a minute, that voice is me!", and who are you surrounded by? A bunch of language monkeys that slavishly obey anything their language machine says and haven't a slightest concept of "me" or "I". So in a sense, Adam must have been in a tough spot, you know, because how could he even begin to relate to all those language monkeys around him? Well, we are at that same turning point again. Now that we're beginning to realize that that voice is not me. It was, that was an interesting idea, but its not true. Who I am, is an interesting question, and I'm not going to go into that right now, but it's got something to do with being the programmer of the language machine, rather than the language machine itself.

So, thats what this whole Earthnet stuff is about and transhuman support line and monkey OS, I think we are at a turning point in history, and there is a new species emerging, not a genetically distinct species, that's not really very important. Genetic heritage is irrelevant as far as I'm concerned. Linguistic inheritance is what counts, the way we think is much more important than who we can impregnate. And the difference when a person wakes up, or an entity is even a better word because, it's not a person actually, in the old sense of a person. When this new entity emerged in my nervous system that realized the voice is not me, well, I feel sort of the same way Adam must have felt about the language monkeys around him, cause almost everybody i know/see, and actually to back up just a moment: There's not that much difference between believing that the voice is god and believing that the voice is me. Because ultimately, both end up believing everything they hear the language machine say, and following it's instructions.

Except that a long time ago they thought it was God telling them what to do, now they think the voice is me, so because its me, it must be true, i must believe it, therefore whatever it says, I do.

But once you're divorced from that, once the identity with the voice has been broken, you're in a position to reprogram it, to observe it, to see whether it makes sense or not. and to begin debugging it, and reprogramming it to be a lot less stupid.

And that is, I think, the emergence of a new era of evolution on the earth.

And earthnet is about getting the transhumans organized so that we can take over.

Because basically the humans have proven themselves incapable of managing planetary civilization. They're killing one another about as fast, and they're killing the planet. They're simply just not capable of moving onto the next step on this planet, and so what we need to do is encourage the emergence of these trans-humans and train children so that they know that that voice is not them and not bring them up in that ridiculous myth. And we can get on with a new era of evolution on earth.

from the archive: this was previously published as #442. a participant called my attention to a part of this recording about the M.O.S. (monkey operating system). i listened to the file and found it to be a fairly good articulation of some basic ideas i've been working on for a long time. this was recorded on june 9, 2006 in skypecast. it begins with a conversation with eagle feather, a cherokee indian.
